Cafeteria Changes Hours To Meet Student Needs

In order to best meet student needs, the cafeteria staff will begin serving hot lunches at 11 a.m. instead of 11:30 a.m., announced Mrs. Ursula Stanton, cafeteria manager.

Mrs. Stanton explained that there had been a great demand for the lunches to be served earlier, since so many out-of-town students had tight schedules to meet.

Cafeteria hours are Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. for the snack bar, and 11 a.m. through 1 p.m. for the cafeteria line.

Pettley to Speak At Next Assembly

An Englishman Discovers America is the topic on which John Pettley, British humorist, will speak at summer session's second assembly. The assembly is scheduled for Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the gymnasium.

Born in London, England, Pettley first came to this country in 1946 to study at the California Institute of Technology. He returned to England in 1947 to help in the production of British films. Since 1948 he has been a member of the faculty of the Webb School in Claremont, where he combines his teaching activities with extensive speaking engagements.

During the years of his permanent residence in the United States, Pettley has devoted himself to the cause of a closer understanding between the peoples of the United States and Britain through humorous interpretation of the differences in their ways of life.

Pettley's background includes undergraduate training at the University of London, The Royal Naval Volunteer Service during World War II, and work as headmaster of Wellington College, Milborne Port, England. He is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical and Royal Meteorological Societies.

Co-editor Announces Statesman Being Sent

The Statesman, Sacramento State College's yearbook, is being mailed this week to students who have not already picked their copy up, according to Doris Caldwell, co-editor of the book.

Miss Caldwell also requested that any students who have had difficulty in obtaining their yearbook, or who have any complaints of a serious nature in regard to the Statesman, should contact her in 131 Administration building.

Registration Hits New Peak As 1783 Enroll For Classes

Summer session registration at Sacramento State College early last week set an all-time record of 1783 students enrolling for classes, according to James O. Booker, registrar. Booker said that complete figures are not available at this time. The 1783 enrollment includes only the six and eight week sessions, as registration is not complete for the various seminars, conferences, and the Lake Tahoe session.

Large First Day

Booker noted that registration the first day was "the largest first day we've ever had." He pointed out that the system of having the students register in the gymnasium is new, and commented that "this is a much better system."

Show Records

Records from the business office indicate that the summer sessions have shown a steady growth since the first session in 1948, which drew a total of 387 students. The following year 856 enrolled to more than double the previous number.

For the next five years, records show the following enroll-

Well Done!

Congratulations are in order to faculty, staff, and students alike for the smooth, eficient manner in which this summer session's registration was handled.

Those who have previously had the trying experience of waiting nearly half the day to register were no doubt gratified to find that under the system employed, each of the nearly two thousand people who passed through the gymnasium spent little more than a half hour and sometimes less to register.

The posting of large signs, the help of many student walking "information booths," and the helpful attitude of all concerned made this registration a fast-moving and pleasant experience.

With this summer session well under way at this point, there is only one more hope to express—may the rest go as smoothly as did registration!

Library Initiates System To Prevent Extra Losses

A new check system has been set up in the Sacramento State College library, according to Herbert Drummond, circulation librarian.

The check has been designed to eliminate losses from the library such as those suffered when students borrow books without the formality of first checking them out.

Under the new system, students will be asked to leave the library through the one door marked exit, and then show all books to the attendant on duty. No student will be permitted to leave until the attendant has verified the charging of library books.

Drummond explained that this system is being employed on an experimental basis during the summer session. Should it prove successful, it will be put into practice during the regular school year.

Dr. James M. Bradfield, coordinator of summer session, said that registration for Lake Tahoe will be held every Monday, at which time students may register for 1 unit per week.

New Addition Goes Up To Enlarge Bookstore

Because of crowded facilities and lack of space in the Hornet bookstore, a storeroom is being added at the side of the main building.

Dewey James, superintendent of buildings and grounds, said that the new addition will be completed about July 10. He said that the size of the new storeroom is approximately 380 sq. ft.

James commented that the room will be used to store books and other supplies handled by the bookstore.

Music Circus Going Strong; Jan McArt Shows Promise

By FRED GEIS

Lewis and Young have done it again. They've topped their past successes with the Music Circus' opening shows. Their latest, On the Town, was full of vitality, sparkle and down to earth sincerity.

Speaking of sincerity, Stormy House is the most unasuming young star I've ever met. She gives all the credit to her coworkers and as she says, "I'm very grateful to Lewis and Young for giving me this opportunity."

Bill Shirley made this comment, "We've had a lot of fun doing the show. The music is terrific."

Bill is right, the music is terrific. I'm Not Out of Bed Yet, the opening song, is very melodic. New York, New York, is done in a fresh manner with original staging.

Jonathan Lucas, who replaced Adolf Green as Ozzie in the original show said, "We were scared for five minutes, then we found out the audience was with us and we were fine."

They had good reason to be scared for it was opening night and any criticism I might have is cancelled out by the all-over sparkle of the show.

The Mikado, opening tonight at 8:30 in the big green and yellow tent at 15th and H, is bound to be a sellout.

One big reason for this is a fresh new personality, Jan McArt. Miss McArt sings with an amazing combination of vitality and maturity that is unusual in one so young. She will take the part of Yum Yum.

Hansen Selected to Represent CSTA

Barbara Hansen, state president of the California Student Teachers Association and a past president of the Sacramento State College group, will represent CSTA at the National Teacher Education and Professional Standing Committee in DeKalb, Illinois, from tomorrow through Saturday.

Miss Hansen is the second woman to head the state association since 1937, when the organization was established. At SSC, she has been active in CSTA, Campus Republicans, Rally Committee and the Psychology Club.

She will fly to Illinois today with Mary Ball, first state advisor of CSTA. Dr. Arthur Corey ,executive secretary of the California Teachers Association, is in charge of the CTA delegation from Northern California.

Miss Hansen will return to Sacramento next Sunday after attending meetings which will evaluate the Future Teachers of America program.

SSC Coeds Work For Local Papers

Two Sacramento State College students who have had journalism training are putting their knowledge to work in the society sections of the Sacramento Bee and the Sacramento Union.

Mary Terese Oehlrich, former society editor of the Hornet, is writing for the society pages of the Bee during the summer months. Miss Oehlrich is a June graduate of SSC and majored in language arts. She is returning next semester to do graduate study.

The Sacramento Union is employing Fifi Gurvis, editor of next year's Hornet. Miss Gurvis was the managing editor of last year's Hornet, and editor of the Sacramento Junior College paper, The Pony Express. She also is employed for the summer months only.

Both coeds are campus correspondents for the local papers during the regular academic sessions. They are also continuing in this capacity for summer session.

Cooperation Needed In SSC Parking Lots

Parking at Sacramento State College is always a problem. However, this year there are more spaces available than ever before because of the newly built additions, according to Dewey James, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

James stated that there are two places where parking is prohibited to students — the faculty and staff lots located by the cafeteria and the administration building. Spaces in these lots are reserved and numbered, and students should refrain from using them.

Car decals will not be issued to summer session students this year because the large enrollment has made this impracticable. James said the cooperation of all students is needed for successful handling of the parking situation.

Scribe Accepts Articles For Fall Publication

Diana Lions, newly appointed editor of the Scribe, Sacramento State College student literary journal, announced that manuscripts are now being accepted for publication. Summer session students are urged to contribute their original literary works to the magazine.

A temporarily defunct campus periodical, the Scribe will be published quarterly, according to Miss Lions' current plans. "If sufficient material is available," Miss Lions stated, "we shall publish the new Scribe near the beginning of the fall semester. At any rate, we hope for two editions a semester."

Both student written prose and poetry, serious or humorous, is considered for publication, pending review and selection by a student-faculty committee. All contributions will receive earnest consideration but not financial compensation. The editor commented, "However, in time we hope to make the quarterly semi-commercial."

Drama Department Plans Varied Summer Program

Dr. Charles V. Hume announces that at least two major dramatic productions will be presented on campus during summer session. The first show of the season will be Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie, to be produced July 5, 6 and 7.

Other shows presently under consideration are Bell, Book and Candle, a comedy concerning a modern-day witch and her life and loves; The Silver Whistle, a comedy, about the strange goings-on in an old folks' home; and The Grass Harp, one of Truman Capote's latest.

All shows will be staged in the round, arena style, in the Theatre Workshop.

To meet the tight rehearsal schedule, all plays were cast by the end of the first week of summer session. Technical help, however, is needed. In The Glass Menagerie, there are intricate light and sound plots that require competent handling. Always in demand are prompters, property men, and general construction and set change personnel, according to Hume.

July 5 Scheduled As Opening For Drama, Glass Menagerie

By KNUTE MARTIN

Tennessee Williams' famed drama, The Glass Menagerie, will open Tuesday, July 5, for a three-night run in the Theater Workshop.

For two years a presentation of the Sacramento State College summer theater, the play is cast with Joan Severe as Amanda Wingfield, present day relic of the ante-bellum South; and Rosemary Stevens in the role of the invalid daughter, Laura. The recalcitrant Tom Wingfield will be played by Ron Cole, and William Hodges will portray the reluctant lover, Jim O'Conner.

Long a stage production on Broadway, The Glass Menagerie has been universally accepted by critics as Williams' best and most conceivable drama. Technically the play is classified as a "problem play"—a pot pouri of opposing human values and emotions arriving at chaos. Amanda Wingfield, living in departed glory, demands marriage for the unmarriageable daughter, Laura.

Antagonistic to his mother and her wants, the son follows in his father's footsteps and deserts his mother and sister. The gentleman caller, Laura's last link with a virile society, does not aid the situation by announcing his engagement to another.

Dr. Charles V. Hume, assistant professor of speech, is director of the theater workshop production, with Miss Severe as acting director of the Williams' drama.

Artists Present 1st Summer Show

Water colors by Sacramento State College students of the spring semester are currently on display in the art building exhibition gallery.

Open daily, the art show is the first of the summer session and is under the direction of Raymond Witt, assistant professor of art. Under the auspices of art department faculty, two other student shows are slated during the six-week period.

SSC students who have contributed to the present show include Roy Bagely, Edward Brennan, Carol Dudley, Dorothy Fricker, Raymond Gage, Manuel Gorre, and Monica Hannasch. Additional exhibitors are Clara Kingston, Adele Lee, Joseph Patitucci, Ann Pompei, Sandra Rhoades and Jack Scram.

Exhibits may be entered by all students completing projects while enrolled in SSC art courses during summer or regular sessions.

Murals Shown On Outer Walls Of Art Building

Sacramento State College has established precedent in the state college system by being the first to allow semi-permanent student art work on exterior walls.

Legislative approval was specifically granted for the construction of the expansive unbroken wall in the new art building, allowing SSC students the opportunity of practical experience in muralistic painting. Formerly, state legislators denied similar requests from college administrators, claiming that student art talent did not embellish but rather defaced state property.

Erected during the fall semester, the art building's arcade wall has subsequently become a galaxy of artistic expression. With the initial success of Larry Foster and the mural of a solo cock fight, additional murals, frescoes, and mosaics have been placed on outside exhibit.

The present display, in order of appearance from the central entrance, includes a ceramic mosaic, above the viewing cases, and a Byzantine mosaic by Carol Dudley. Wall murals include two by Foster, an indiscriminate collage of color and the rooster. Alta Howe's religious motif and a stylized carousel scene by Monica Hannasch are next in line. Two other murals, a Venetian gondola by Rudolf Bennewies, a horse grouping by Ann Pompei and a fresco by Margaret Miller comprise the display.

Scarlet Letter Set For Next Showing

The Scarlet Letter, an operatic adaptation of Nathaniel Hawthorne's novel by James Adair, associate professor of music, has been selected for presentation June 28 at Mills College.

Sacramento audiences recently saw the first performance of the composition in the Tuesday Club auditorium, when both Sacramento State College and guest musicians combined for the presentation. The Oakland college production of the opera will be in conjunction with the Music Teachers' Association convention being held on that campus. The occasion will mark the second performance of the musical work.

Tales From Tahoe

By DIANA LIONS

Registration tables scattered on a sunlit lawn in front of the Tahoe City School marked the opening of Sacramento State College's first Lake Tahoe Session this morning at 8 a.m. Classes will begin at 8:30 a.m. every day and will continue until 12:30 p.m. Afternoons will be free for "homework" on the beach!

An Arts Festival scheduled to be held July 8 and 9 is the first special event of the Tahoe season. According to Paul A. Beckman, Tahoe Session director, the festival will include an exhibit of art work done during the first two weeks; a life science exhibit by Dr. Martin R. Brittan, assistant professor of life sciences; and a series of three one acts presented by the drama division under direction of Dr. Carl A. Thomas, assistant professor of speech and drama.

Plan One Acts

Hello Out There by William Saroyan, Simple Notions by Tennessee Williams and Happy Journey by Thornton Wilder are the three one acts which will open the Tahoe drama season. These will be followed on July 22 and 23 with a reading presentation of a three act.

The Robe and The Fourposter are being considered as possible reading productions. A full length production of a three act will close the Tahoe Session in August. The name of the final play has not yet been announced.

Go Scouting

Shades of Davy Crockett! A scouting expedition composed of three Sacramento State College students, Diana Lions, Bingo Glass, and Bob Smart traveled to the lake last weekend to help prepare for the opening of the session.

Glass reports that housing accommodations for Thomas and his family, plus a group of drama students, are located in a pine grove one block from the school. Beckman will reside in Squaw Valley for the six weeks and Brittan plans to camp in a tent on the Tahoe School grounds.

Janice Berkibile, April Pettijohn and Diana Lions will act as registrars each Monday morning during the six-week Tahoe Session. Students may register for one unit each week or for the entire six units.

Especially in the Summer!

Larry Foster Awarded Scholarship In Kingsley Art Club Competition

Larry Foster, Sacramento State College senior, was awarded the Kingsley Art Club scholarship, the college art faculty announced recently. Foster is currently enrolled in the SSC summer session. His scholarship was awarded to him over five other student contestants.

Founded three years ago by the Kingsley Art Club of Sacramento, the scholarship is awarded annually to deserving student artists. Awards are given on the basis of scholarship, art experience, recommendation and need.

As the winner, Foster was under the aegis of Robert Else and Paul Beckman, associate professors of art at SSC.

For several years, Foster has been a recipient of art scholarships and awards. The achievement of winning the Kingsley Club award is considered by local artists as a top honor.

Foster's other prizes include an award by the Chouinard Art Institute of Los Angeles and many local art groups. At the present time, he is serving as designer of the student art exhibit for the Sacramento County Fair.

Governor Signs, Bill For Teachers' Rights

Governor Goodwin J. Knight has signed a bill guaranteeing teachers the right to participate in political activity during their off-duty hours.

The legislation will prohibit local legislative bodies and school authorities from limiting school employees' participation in political activity during their free time.

The bill grew out of a San Francisco incident in which a board imposed a no-politics ban after some teachers had opposed re-election of a board member, according to Assemblyman Elliott, Democrat from Los Angeles.

Doctorate Given To SSC Librarian

At ceremonies at Stanford University recently, Alan D. Covey, Sacramento State College librarian, received his doctorate. Theme for his thesis was Evaluation of College Libraries for Accreditation Purposes.

Covey received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California at Berkeley and his general secondary credential from the same institution. During World War II, he served four years in the army.

His professional background includes the library school at the University of California, three years' work in the library there; and he has also been assistant librarian at San Francisco State College.

Covey joined the staff of Sacramento State College in 1952.
